

LO: To understand that cultural differences can sometimes cause conflict

- To be aware of my own culture

Connect Us: Celebrating Our Differences

- Stand up if
 - you are a girl
 - you are a boy

Is there any conflict between these two groups in school?

Connect Us: Celebrating Our Differences

- Stand up if
 - you have long hair
 - you were born in a different country to where you live now
 - you can speak more than one language
 - you wear glasses
 - you don't wear glasses

Is there ever any conflict between children who wear glasses and those who don't?

Connect Us: Celebrating Our Differences

- Stand up if
 - your birthday is in January
 - you have ever been to hospital
 - you are British
 - you belong to a religion
 - you don't belong to a religion

Is there any conflict between these last two groups?

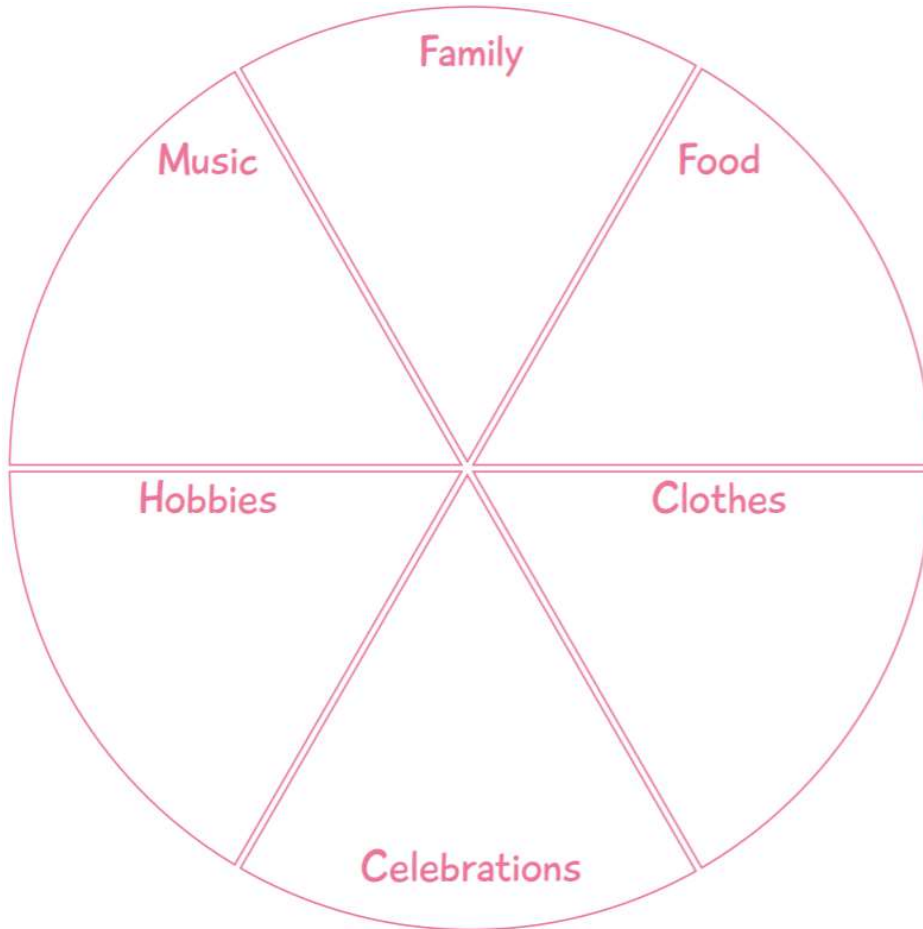

Connect Us: Celebrating Our Differences

We are all different and belong to different groups.
We all need to belong and need to celebrate our uniqueness and specialness, as well as our similarities and differences.

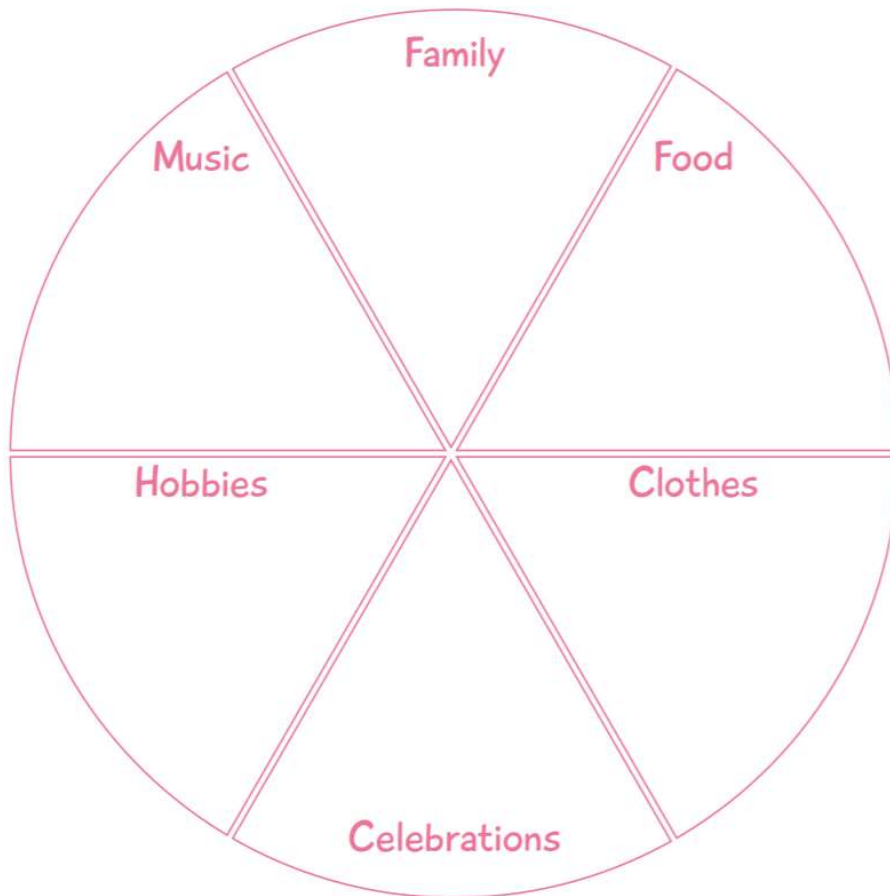

Sometimes, people allow differences to cause conflict.

Culture Wheel

Discuss with your partner the culture wheel for you.

Discuss what you think the culture wheel for this girl might look like.

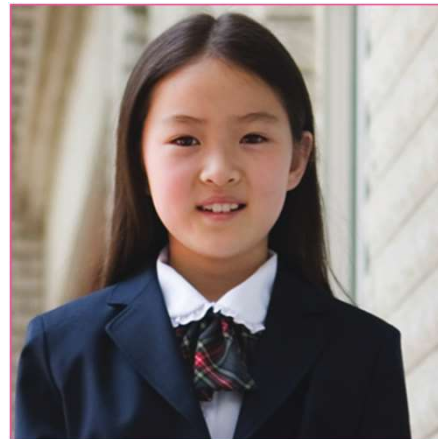

For your child, complete your second culture wheel. Groups with the same child, compare your ideas. Why do you think there are differences when you have looked at the same child?

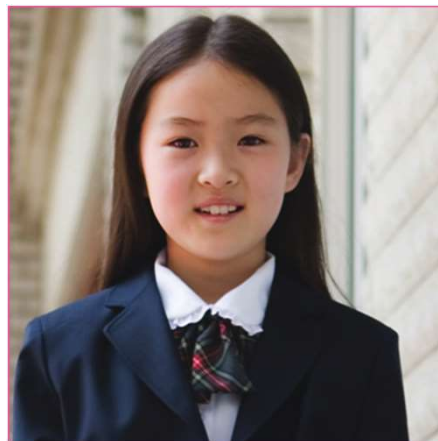

Conjunctions to compare similarities	Conjunctions to contrast differences
Also, Equally, Like Both In the same way (that) Similarly, / ; similarly, Likewise As with	but However, / ; however, Unlike whereas On the other hand, Instead of Alternatively, Despite (the fact that) although

Where do you think each child lives? Why?

Compare your child with a different child.

These children all live in the UK. Why might there be differences in culture?
What elements of their culture might cause conflict? What might this conflict look like?

What three aspects of being British most help you feel like you belong to this culture?

LO: To understand that cultural differences can sometimes cause conflict

- To be aware of my own culture