WORKING IN PARTNERSHIP WITH PARENTS

Writers of the Month

I am always delighted to read the children's writing, it is so lovely to see their progress and once again there are excellent examples of good writing on the Writing Creatively board. For the month of January I have selected four pieces of writing to be included in this week's bulletin. The writing ranges from one of our reception class pupils, to that of Caitlin C who is in Y5. If you are in school, please take time to view the writing on the board that is just outside of my office.

Lenny S (Gateshead)

Once upon a time the birds did not know how to fly. But won day crow discovered that if he flapt his wings he saw high ubuve the trees. So he told tiger but tiger just roared. Next he told elephant but elephant just blew his trumpit brrrr.

After he told giraffe but giraffe just laft Ha Ha Ha. Finally he told his friend tortoise who bleeved him. So the two friends disidid to clim to the top of the mountain to sho all the birds how to fly. All the birds cheered noisally hooray! Then silly old tortoise decided to help his friend. So he jumped off top of the mountain. At that moment he realised he didnt have any wings. He tumbled down and down until he smashed on the rocks below. Immediately all the birds flew down to help the tortoise.

Sir Lancelot

Slowly, the dying sunlight shone through thorny vines hanging from moss green trees. In the distance, owls hooted noisily, as they glided through the gloomy air to their rusty ancient trees, ready to swoop down again to capture it's prey. Small creatures slowly scuttled around as darkness fell.

Suddenly the noise was silenced by the thud of hooves, thundering through the undergrowth. It was a towering warhorse that pawed the ground, sides lathered up, tossing its fine head, snorting in fury. On top, a giant of a man, perched on the horse wearing battered armor and a dented helmet which showed his thin, wispy lips and his terrible wolfish eyes that froze the courage in a man's vein. Carefully, he started trotting deeper into the forest...

The Great Aryana and the Angry Minator

Once upon a time, there was a little girl called Aryana who loved making people laugh all the time and was a very brave and intelligent person. Her hair was as the night sky shimmering and as 1,000 pillows. Aryana's eyes where a beautiful greeny browney colour. Her nails were as sharp as the sharpest dagger in the world and could plunge through anything. She lived in a quiet old and vast maze in Athens.

Early one frosty, Artic and breezy morning, in the scary maze, Aryana excitedly hopped out of her king size bed because she was going to the brand new gum shop and her favourite kind of gum was on sale! So she began her walk to the new gum shop... But Maddie stopped Aryana to say "Beware of the angry Minator." Aryana forgot what Maddie said because she thought it was a load of scary junk. Suddenly Aryana came to a deep dark unknown cave...

Can we please ask parents if there is inclement weather that the children come to school with appropriate footwear (wellies or boots) then change into their school shoes once they are in school.

Also warm, waterproof coats and hats, scarves and gloves are needed for playtimes.

Thank you for your continued support.

Water bottles are now back in stock at the school office at a cost of £1.20. Spare lids can also be purchased at a cost of 25p.

If your child has sickness and/or diarrhoea, they must stay off school for 48 hours after the last bout of the illness.

Thank you.
